4 more arraigned in fatal Dupont biker shootout

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Four alleged co-conspirators who have been charged in a fatal shootout involving a member of their biker gang on June 22 near Dupont, were arraigned in Jefferson County Circuit Court this week and are now awaiting trial.

Two of the four — a man and a woman from Jennings County — appeared by video conference on Wednesday from their respective jails while the other two men were arraigned Friday by video from their jails. Jefferson Circuit Judge D.J. Mote entered not guilty pleas in each case and set September pre-trial conference dates as well as tentative dates for jury trials for all four.

Michael J. Karnuth, 31, North Vernon, has been charged with Murder, a Level 1 felony; Attempted Burglary and Attempted Robbery, both Level 2 felonies; and Obstruction of Justice, a Level 6 felony. He appeared by video conference on Wednesday from the Decatur County Jail and was assigned a public

Disaster assistance center now open for flood victims

BY BOB DEMAREE

Residents impacted by the June 18 flooding began submitting applications for assistance Friday morning, just a day after the City of Madison was notified that a Disaster Declaration was issued by the U.S. Small Business Administration (USSBA).

The Disaster Declaration made by the USSBA makes the city eligible for assistance through the USSBA and the State Disaster Relief Fund (SDRF). The USSBA offers low-interest loans to individuals and entities that sustain damages related to a disaster. The SDRF provides financial support to restore damaged property to its prior condition.

On Friday morning, affected residents began submitting applications at the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce conference room, 301 East Main Street, at a center staffed by USSBA representatives and an Indiana Department of Homeland Security representative, who will be available to help residents and business owners with the disaster relief application process. The center will continue to operate 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday, July 10, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, July 12 through Friday, July 16.

By late morning on Friday, Sophia Flores, assistant customer service representative for the USSBA, said there had been about 10 people go through the process so far but many more are expected. "We have not yet had the lines, but we think there will be," she said.

Individuals seeking assistance from either program must first apply for assistance from the USSBA. If an individual or business is denied assistance from the USSBA, they will then become eligible to apply for SDRF assistance. SDRF assistance is only available if USSBA assistance is denied. Compensation from the SDRF is limited to not more than $10,000 per household. It will not provide money for losses that are covered by insurance.

Larry Cassagne, individual assistance coordinator for the Indiana Department of Homeland Security, is there to help residents apply for grants through the State Disaster

JCHD urges vaccinations as Delta variant becomes more prevalent

BY BOB DEMAREE

With the Delta variant accounting for at least 26% of new COVID-19 infections in the United States — and now the dominant strain for new cases in Indiana — the Jefferson County Health Department is urging all eligible Hoosiers get vaccinated.

The Delta variant is estimated to be 60% more transmissible than the Alpha variant, according to information released by JCHD.

Jefferson County remains at a "Blue" advisory this week, meaning the county is seeing minimal community spread.

COVID vaccines are administered at JCHD, 715 Green Road, Monday through Friday for those age 12 and older. Vaccines are available from Pfizer, Moderna, and Johnson and Johnson. Appointments can be scheduled by visiting www.ourshot.in.gov or by calling 211. Walk-ins are accepted during regular business hours Monday through Friday. Anyone under the age of 18 will need to have a parent or guardian consent and have an adult present.

COVID vaccines will also be administered during the upcoming Jefferson County 4-H Fair beginning Monday, July 12 through Friday, July 16, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., just outside the community building.

The Switzerland County Health Department continues to operate a vaccine clinic but has moved operations from the technology center to the Health Department, 1190 West Main Street, Vevay. Free testing is still available at the health department.

Jefferson County has 14,092 residents vaccinated — 43.6% of the county's population — and a total of 13,527 have received the first dose of a two-dose series. In Switzerland County, 2,491 have been fully vaccinated for 23.3% with 2,394 receiving the first

JCPC looks to Jennings official for guidance on nuisance enforcement

BY BOB DEMAREE

When Marie Shepherd took over as executive director of the Jennings County Area Plan Commission five years ago, she was told "your job is to clean up our county," and because of her success, the Jefferson County Plan Commission asked her to attend its meeting Wednesday to gain some insight into how to do that locally.

Shepherd said the Jennings County Area Plan Commission actively pursues properties that would be considered a nuisance; that they don't just rely on people saying they cleaned up a property, they follow through and check on them. She said they have 700 cases they are working on now, and had 284 court hearings last year. "It's time consuming, but once you get in a pattern, it works," Shepherd said. "You have got to have everyone on board to make it work."

Shepherd said the community is now aware that the Jennings County Area Plan Commission is serious about enforcement. "We follow-up with everything, and once they knew that we were consistent, they have responded," she said, noting, "People realize we are going to do something."

One of biggest challenges Shepherd faced was at Country Squire Lakes in Jennings County, where the Commission demolished 400 mobile homes that had been abandoned or damaged by fire.

Shepherd said they react to complaints from people in the community, but added, "If I drive by and I see" a property with an issue, "I will start (the complaint) myself; I know that I will hear about it eventually," she said.

Charities, faith-based organizations assisting with recovery from flood

BY MARK CAMPBELL

In a report to Madison City Council on Tuesday, Jefferson County Emergency Management Director Troy Morgan said damage assessments for natural disasters like flooding involve multiple phases and take time.

Flood recovery efforts are continuing in Madison but what and how much relief those hit hardest on June 18 will receive may not be known for some time but agencies like the Salvation Army and faith-based groups are doing what they can to help.

In a report to Madison City Council on Tuesday, Jefferson County Emergency Management Director Troy Morgan said damage assessments for natural disasters like flooding involve multiple phases and take time.

"I'm not going to say where we're going yet because we're not real sure," Morgan said. However, he added that so far the agencies who have reviewed Jefferson County's initial damage assessment "have agreed with everything we have submitted."

Morgan said that allowed a Disaster Declaration to be declared and helped expedite the process. (See additional coverage on Page A1). "It's not a convenient process but it's a process we have to work through," he said.

In the meantime, Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said nonprofit and faith-based groups are doing all they can to assist those in need from providing food and shelter to cleaning supplies and other assistance.

Dave Adams a volunteer and board member at the Salvation Army, said everyone has "stepped up" to get their "volunteer network going."

About 10 families were living in hotels initially — some of those forced to leave after rooms had been pre-booked for the Madison Regatta — but housing has been located so that only three families now need shelter. A relief fundraiser collected over $3,000 and local businesses have donated materials and supplies to assist with cleanup and restoration.

In other business, the Council:

• Heard a report by Deputy Mayor and Chief of Staff Mindy McGee that a sidewalk study shows Madison has 40 miles of sidewalks in 790 segments with 9 miles good, 22 miles adequate and 9 miles fair to poor and in need of replacement or significant investment. About 36% of the city's sidewalks are ADA compliant.

• Heard a suggestion by Jan Vetrhus that the city consider hiring a full-time civil engineer to provide expertise on projects like highways, storm water drainage and facilities like Crystal Beach Pool. Courtney said the city uses four civil engineering firms specializing in various areas.

• Jill Kelly Koren asked about progress on her request that a racial equity audit be conducted..

Relief Fund. "Not many states have their own relief fund," he said.

Mary Thompson, who was renting on 900 block of North Walnut Street, said she "lost everything" in the flooding except pictures on the wall and clothes that hung higher up in the closet, All else was lost including furniture and "what-nots" she owned. Thompson said she's moved from the home and is temporarily living with family until she can relocated to a new apartment at the Riverside Tower Lofts in two weeks.

Thompson said when the flooding occurred she was asleep and when she looked out it "looked like glass" alongside the building and then she realized it was water. A boat rescued her and her boyfriend. "We're OK. We're just taking it one step at a time. I have a great family that has helped."

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said, "The USSBA Disaster Declaration is the first step toward helping our community recover. We encourage everyone impacted by the recent flooding to apply for the assistance offered by the USSBA whether you believe you will qualify or not."

USSBA Administrator Isabella Casillas Guzman said the declaration covers Jefferson and Monroe counties, and the adjacent counties of Brown, Clark, Greene, Jackson, Jennings, Lawrence, Morgan, Owen, Ripley, Scott and Switzerland in Indiana; and Carroll and Trimble counties in Kentucky.

"The SBA is strongly committed to providing the people of Indiana with the most effective and customer-focused response possible to assist businesses of all sizes, homeowners and renters with federal disaster loans," said Guzman. "Getting businesses and communities up and running after a disaster is our highest priority at SBA."

"We will continue working with our local community organizations, USSBA, IDHS, and other state/federal agencies to assist those affected," said Courtney. "We will also soon be launching a fundraising campaign for our long-term recovery efforts. As we receive more information and continue to collect data, we will keep the community informed."

defender with a pretrial conference set for Sept. 15 and a jury trial on Sept. 28.

Jordan M. Lowe, 26, of North Vernon, has been charged with Assisting a Criminal, a Level 5 felony, and Obstruction of Justice, a Level 6 felony. She appeared by video conference on Wednesday from the Jennings County Jail and was assigned a public defender with a pretrial conference on Sept. 15 and a jury trial on Sept. 28.

Gary W. Fletcher, 40, of Hamilton, Ohio, been charged with Murder, a Level 1 felony; Attempted Murder, Attempted Burglary and Attempted Robbery, all Level 2 felonies; and Obstruction of Justice, a Level 6 felony. He was arraigned Friday by video conference from the Floyd County Jail with a pretrial conference date on Sept. 22 and an Oct. 5 jury trial.

David Faulkner, 42, of Cleves, Ohio, has been charged with Murder, a Level 1 felony; Attempted Burglary and Attempted Robbery, both Level 2 felonies; and Obstruction of Justice, a Level 6 felony. He was arraigned on Friday morning by video from the Jackson County Jail with a pretrial conference date set for Sept. 22 and an Oct. 5 jury trial.

Previously, a fifth defendant, Jason W. Brewer, 35, of North Vernon, was arraigned on charges of Murder, a Level 1 felony; Attempted Murder, Attempted Robbery and Attempted Burglary, all Level 2 felonies; and Obstruction of Justice, a Level 6 felony. He is currently incarcerated in the Jefferson County Jail and his next scheduled court appearance is a pretrial conference on Sept. 15 before a jury trial scheduled for Sept. 28.

All five suspects are also facing a Criminal Gang Enhancement that could add years to their prison sentences if convicted. The four men are being held without bond while Lowe, who according to police was not along on the raid but assisted in a coverup by helping to dispose of weapons and vehicles, is being held in lieu of a $10,000 cash bond. Public defenders will be assigned to Brewer, Faulkner, Karnuth and Lowe but Fletcher told the court that a family member will retain legal defense to represent him in the case.

Indiana State Police investigators claim the four men along with Dustin B. Lindner, 35, of Georgetown, Kentucky, traveled to a property in the 8900 block of North John Deere Road shortly after 4 a.m. on June 22, armed with guns and knives and looking for another biker, Shawn Rudis, whom they believed to be posing as a gang member or possibly an undercover informant by displaying patches and tattoos representing membership in the "Warlocks" and/or "Pagans" biker clubs.

The encounter resulted in a shootout between Rudis and three of the bikers and Lindner was fatally wounded by a bullet from a .223 rifle fired by Rudis. The murder charges stem from an Indiana law that allows associates in the commission of a crime to be charged when anyone — including an associate — dies during the crime.

Two of the four suspects — Brewer and Fletcher — are also charged with attempted murder because they, along with Lindner, allegedly exchanged gunfire with Rudis while he was holed up in a shed near the end of North John Deer Lane.

Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter said the case is still under investigation.

Shepherd said it helps when people realize "we're not picking on their property, but it's that your property values can be worth more," she said.

Shepherd said the county has an unsafe building fund that provides funding for tearing down unsafe structures, which the Jennings County Council contributes $40,000 to annually. After a structure is demolished a lien is put on the property that the landowner will pay along with property taxes, and that money goes back into the unsafe building fund.

Shepherd said the cost to demolish unsafe structures is based on what is received from bids, typically ranging from $1,200 to $2,000 with the biggest expense for demolishing a home being a two-story structure in town that she said cost $4,800. For the most part, the fund continues to grow so they always have the money available when it's needed to take care of an unsafe structure. However, they did have one project that took a big part of the fund last year when they demolished the dilapidated Butlerville High School at a cost of $108,550.

The Jennings County Area Plan Commission utilizes iWorQ, which provides community development and public works software, for processing all of its data, and Shepherd said that's been an essential part of keeping up with the workload. She said there's a total of five people on staff, but not all five work on nuisance issues, noting for example that the building inspector is focused on building compliance that Shepherd related to part of Plan Commission's work that brings new projects into the community.

Jefferson County Plan Commission member David Ferguson questioned about the staffing that would be necessary if Jefferson County were to pursue an effort similar to what Jennings County is doing. "We would need to start slow and train. We need to be certain we have the staff to handle it promptly and properly," he said.

Commissioner David Bramer, who is a member of the Plan Commission, recommended that a non-reverting fund be set up that can be used to establish an unsafe building fund. "Once it gets started, we will see results," Bramer said. Plan Commission Chairman Warren Auxier recommended that a $25,000 request for an unsafe building fund be made to the County Council in the upcoming budget hearings.

Members of the Plan Commission also acknowledged that they need to find out how committed the County Council is to move forward on correcting nuisance properties throughout the county. "It depends on the County Council, and where they are on this issue," said County Surveyor Mike Pittman.

In other business:

• The Commission provided an update on efforts to clean up a property owned by Lewis Handlon, 10218 West Polk Road, Lexington, in Republican Township. Auxier met with Handlon in June, but revisited the property on Tuesday, and noted "some things had been picked up but there was not a major change." He said that two campers were still there after assurance had been given about removing at least one of them.

• Bramer reported that a solar ordinance could be considered when other county ordinances are reviewed during an overall review of the county's Comprehensive Plan that was approved earlier this year. The board agreed that in terms of the plan update it prefers reviewing and amending current ordinances, rather than drafting totally new ordinances. The Plan Commission has discussed creating a solar ordinance to deal with possible solar energy operations that might come into the county at recent meetings.

She was blessed to raise her children, Marsha, Ed, Mark, Lisa, Andy, and Billy. Connie loved mowing her lawn, raising beautiful flowers and gardens. Domestic work still is work

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My husband and I have always happily shared money, but I think you might have missed the mark with your response to "Husband to a Forgetful Wife," who was frustrated that his wife expected to be paid back money that she loaned him for car repairs, among other things.

Last February, I left a job, co-workers, customers and a boss that had a huge impact on me. My boss is still a mentor to me in my personal life. I left to save costs on day care, to make a more cohesive life for our family and to raise our child the way we think is best. I cook; I clean; I shop; I do laundry; I change diapers; I deal with an angry toddler — and I make his life easier.

All of this to say that if he wants to consider all the money he made while she stayed home his, then he can also view it as he (very cheaply) bought a nanny, a personal chef, a personal shopper, a laundry service and a maid. She was a stay-at-home mom, and that is a whole job title.

Now, sure, should she be more helpful if she can? Absolutely. But the most distressing part of his letter was how little respect he gave to his wife for sacrificing years of her life in a supportive role. He didn't support her; they supported each other. — A Stay-at-Home Mom

Dear ASAHM: Well said, and well taken. Domestic work is work. "Husband to a Forgetful Wife" may be forgetting just how many hours his "Forgetful Wife" logged in that department.

Dear Annie: My husband of a year and I have yet to consummate our marriage. Some background on our situation: We're both in our 60s, pretty set in our ways and pretty independent, too — so independent that we don't even live together yet. I was supposed to move into his house, but he's somewhat of a hoarder and doesn't want to get rid of anything to make space for me. So, for now, I stay with my son.

Between the hoarding issue and the lack of physical intimacy, it's a lot. I'm not sure what the problem is. We were intimate during the two years we dated, prior to getting married. Now I'm stuck in a sexless marriage. I feel like I was defrauded. Any advice? — Lady in Waiting

Dear Lady: First and foremost, encourage your husband to see his general practitioner for a full checkup, including bloodwork. The change in his behavior suggests potential underlying issues with his mental and/or physical health.

As for moving in together, establish a firm move-in deadline, and work backward from that date to set smaller deadlines together. Offer to help him organize the house and coordinate pickups from consignment shops and thrift stores. And remind him that this isn't just about making a little room for you to put your things. It's about creating the space, emotionally and physically, for you two to build your new life together.

The end of an engagement

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I'm in a situation where I'm not sure what to do. I've been in a relationship for six years, and we were engaged; however, now he says that it's not going to happen because I am bipolar.

I do everything for him and always think of him more than myself. Then he calls me a baby and doesn't appreciate anything I do for him. I wait on him hand and foot. I try so hard to make things right, and I want things to go further, but it's never going to happen because he now doesn't feel the same way.

I'm tired of all the name-calling and have blocked out the outside world and am living in my own little planet. What am I to do? Please help. — Feeling Terrible

Dear Feeling Terrible: What you are to do is take all the energy you have been using to try to convince your ex-fiance to be with you and put it into taking care of yourself. He is not right for you, and the quicker you are able to get over him, the quicker you can move on and find the right man who loves and appreciates you, bipolar and all.

Before any of that happens, make sure that your illness is under control and that you have a good psychiatrist who specializes in bipolar disorder. It's time to try really hard to start loving yourself enough to see that you deserve to be with someone who appreciates what an incredible person it sounds like you are. Best of luck to you.

Dear Annie: You published a letter from "Customer Etiquette" about a client who made a three-hour hairdressing appointment and then didn't show. Her excuse was that she "forgot."

My father, a psychoanalyst, always said, "You only forget what is forgettable." If Brad Pitt invited her for supper, I doubt she'd forget it, but the hairdresser's time is expendable. Sometimes, it's a good idea to ask people to define what they mean by "forget."

Usually, people cannot answer for the simple reason that "I forgot" has become a one-size-fits-all excuse.

Respect for other people's time is something I learned in junior high. The class was to go somewhere at a fixed time. When we got up to leave, one student wasn't ready. While he got his act together, the teacher looked at his watch and then said, "Smith, you will have a 50-minute detention." When asked why, the teacher explained that there were 25 students and he had kept them waiting for two minutes. Simple arithmetic.

Obviously, the client had never accepted that other people's time is just as important as hers. I believe the word is "narcissism." — Annoyed by Inconsiderate People

Dear Annoyed: You make many good points, and I especially like your Brad Pitt example. Read on to see some solutions from another salon.

READI program competition greater than anticipated

BY BOB DEMAREE

The $500 million Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative (READI) program is expected to help up to 10 regions.

The level of interest and competition for funding through the Indiana Economic Development Corporation's Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative (READI) — a program to invest up to $500 million toward regional development projects — has proven to be even greater than anticipated.

During Tuesday's weekly task force meeting of the Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority, it was announced by Wendy Dant-Cheeser, facilitator for OurSIRDA, that 18 regions have been defined in the state in hopes of being awarded the up to $50 million for implementation of their regional development plans. Dant-Cheeser provided the update following a conversation she had with Mark Wasky, vice president, Innovation and Strategic Initiatives for the IEDC. Dant-Cheeser said 91 of Indiana's 92 counties are participating with Fayette County the only exception not included in a region.

The $500 million READI program is expected to help up to 10 regions. Dant-Cheeser noted that the existence of 18 regions provides more competition for OurSIRDA, but she said that many regions are just now forming while OurSIRDA has been in existence since late 2017. OurSIRDA includes Jefferson, Clark, Floyd, Scott and Washington counties. "We've got our work cut out for us," she said, noting she still thinks the chances are good for OurSIRDA.

Switzerland County is part of the Southeast Indiana Growth Alliance, formed in 2009. Other counties in that region include Ripley, Ohio, Franklin and Dearborn, and additionally Union County to participating as part of the READI process because of its infrastructure connections with Franklin County.

Greg Norman, SEIGA president, said matching money is one challenge for SEIGA because the region includes several smaller communities with limited resources, but there are some in-kind possibilities that might be used to match, along with using monies from the American Rescue Act.

In the past, Norman noted SEIGA has worked to effectively lobby for economic development on behalf of the region including the expansion of State Road 101 in which it was recently announced there will be a $200 million expansion. "Long term this is a really good thing," said Norman, who noted it not only provides more opportunities for building new homes for families, it provides easier access for workers to and from northern Kentucky.

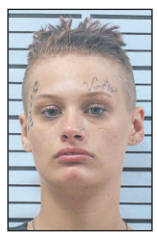
He is hopeful for what SEIGA can do to bring small companies and more people into the region, and about what a project funded by READI could do for the region. "I am very excited about it," he said.

Vevay woman arrested in stolen Jeep following probation meeting

Milton man also charged

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Switzerland County woman reporting for a Jefferson County Community Corrections probation appointment Tuesday in Madison was arrested by Madison Police for arriving at that court-mandated appointment in a stolen vehicle.



Kendra Elise Roark

Robert Aaron Rowlett

Kendra E. Roark, 22, Vevay and Robert A. Rowlett, 33, Milton, Kentucky, were both charged by Madison Police with Theft/Possession of Stolen Property, a Level 6 felony, and were booked into Jefferson County Jail.

Madison Police had received information that Roark had traveled to her community corrections meeting in a stolen gray Jeep, which officers located on Second Street just east of the Jefferson County Community Corrections facility at 108 East Second Street. Officers found a male subject, later identified as Rowlett, in the driver's seat of the stolen vehicle and when Roark exited the community corrections facility, both Roark and Rowlett were taken into custody without incident. Numerous items were located in the vehicle that connected Roark to the stolen Jeep.

The Jeep had been entered into the National Crime Information Center data bank as a stolen vehicle from Ohio.

Madison Patrolman Chad Wehner is leading the ongoing investigation with assistance from Lt. Dan Slygh, and Detectives Jeremey Perkins and Shawn Scudder.

Certificates Of Deposit Strategies

"Bank Certificates of Deposits can be customized to fit most situations, but the devil is in the details!" Stephen Dybwad

Layin' It on the Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

"A good name is more desirable than great riches; to be esteemed is better than silver or gold" – Proverbs 22: 1 NIV

For the last 65 years, John Kasper of Kasper Insurance has built more than a premier insurance agency. He has built a reputation of integrity, service, and compassion that is unrivaled in this community.

When John asked me to join him and his son, Anthony, I immediately accepted the opportunity. It is a pleasure to be associated with a firm that not only has a rich history, but is always looking for ways to keep up with the changing needs of their current and future clients.

One of the ways you build a legacy in this business is by helping clients identify foundational (and often difficult) questions, and then help the client find the answer(s) to those questions. We think everyone should know what their answers should be to the following questions:

1. How much money is enough to provide the guaranteed monthly income you need for the rest of your life?
2. How will you guarantee your income will stay ahead of inflation, after tax, for the rest of your life?
3. How will you grow your assets (if necessary) but guarantee no losses to your account, even while still earning competitive returns?
4. How will you protect your accounts from all market losses, unnecessary fees, and current taxation, but still stay ahead of inflation?
5. How do you prepare for a "worst-case scenario", but still retain access to all your money?

Unfortunately, most people never address these questions because they start their retirement planning by trying to accumulate as much money as possible. That's not necessarily bad, but most people never leave the accumulation stage of planning. When it's time to start spending what they have accumulated, they have no strategy, no guarantees, no protections, no clue, and soon ... no money.

One of the reasons Kasper Insurance is still going strong after 65 years is because we have never really focused on the accumulation of assets. Accumulation is probably the easiest part of retirement planning and there are a lot of brokers out there who do that.

We choose to focus on the preservation and distribution of assets over a lifetime. We will help you arrange and stretch your assets to provide income you can never outlive, opportunity for growth with no market losses, liquidity, easy and complete transfer of wealth at your death to whomever you choose, and we will eliminate every unnecessary tax, fee, and investment cost along the way.

We believe the strategies and tools you used to get TO retirement are not the strategies and tools you should use to get THROUGH retirement.

We will show you how to make the most efficient choices regarding your IRA's, 401(k)'s 403(b)'s, pension plans, brokerage accounts, CD's, and Money Markets.

We will even guide you through the complicated worlds of Social Security and Medicare.

Give us a call and see why after 65 years of taking care of you, we are just getting started!

Brewers beat Reds to boost NL Central lead

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE — Avisaíl García hit a tiebreaking, two-run homer in the eighth inning as the Milwaukee Brewers beat Cincinnati 5-3 Thursday night, boosting their NL Central lead to seven games over the Reds.

The matchup marked the first of seven straight games between the top two teams in the division — four in Milwaukee and, after the All-Star break, three in Cincinnati. The Reds had won six of their previous seven overall.

Garcia's 16th homer of the season came off reliever Brad Brach (0-1).

Reliever Devin Williams (6-1) earned the win and Josh Hader pitched a scoreless ninth for his 21st save.

Milwaukee took a 2-0 lead in the first after Reds pitcher Tyler Mahle slipped trying to field an infield hit by García with the bases loaded, then walked home another run.

The Reds went ahead 3-2 in the fifth.

After two walks by Brewers starter Adrian Houser, the Reds loaded the bases for the third time and Jake Cousins relieved for his eighth career appearance.

Cousins' first two offerings to Tucker Barnhart were wild pitches, each scoring a run. Barnhart hit an RBI single for the lead.

Manager David Bell said Brach has "been outstanding for us, we've relied on him heavily. Even though he would never say so, he might be fatigued a little bit."

The first of two doubles by Keston Hiura tied the game at 3 in the sixth.

The Brewers have remained in first place despite their batters posting the NL's lowest batting average, which was .220 entering Thursday, and the most strikeouts.

STAR STOPPING

The Reds loaded the bases in the first and second innings, but came up empty. In the second, Houser escaped with back-to-back strikeouts of Jesse Winker and Nick Castellanos. Both All-Star starters, the pair entered Thursday ranked among the top five in the NL in OPS, slugging and average, with Castellanos' .335 average leading the league. They went a combined 1 for 8 on Thursday.

REDS 5, ROYALS 2 (WEDNESDAY)

Sonny Gray gave up two runs over seven innings, and Jonathan India hit a two-run double as the Cincinnati Reds rallied for three runs in the seventh inning and beat the Kansas City Royals 5-2 on Wednesday.

Gray (2-4) allowed seven hits, struck out seven and walked two to end a three-start winless streak.

"It was a hot day. He was battling," Cincinnati manager David Bell said.

Halfway there: Suns knock off Bucks for 2-0 lead in NBA Finals

BY BRIAN MAHONEY
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

PHOENIX — The ball went from Chris Paul to Devin Booker and didn't stop moving until Deandre Ayton scored after every Suns player had touched it.

The 10-pass sequence was the prettiest play of the NBA Finals and the kind the one-man show Bucks couldn't dream of.

"We actually talked about that play right after the game, me and Mikal (Bridges), and he was like, 'I think that was the most pumped I've ever been after a play,' " Booker said. "And I was like, me too."

Imagine the feeling if his team gets two more wins.

Booker scored 31 points, Paul had 23 and the Suns beat Milwaukee 118-108 on Thursday night to take a 2-0 series lead.

The Suns have never been closer to an NBA title. Not bad for a team whose coach told them earlier this season had the league's sorriest starting unit, forcing the players to figure things out.

"We did and we're going to keep it going," Paul said.

Booker made seven 3-pointers and the Suns went 20 for 40 behind the arc. Bridges scored 27 points, and Paul finished with eight assists.

The Suns surged ahead late in the first half, withstood Giannis Antetokounmpo's all-around effort to bring the Bucks back, and walked off winners again as fans swung orange rally towels all around them.

Antetokounmpo had 42 points and 12 rebounds in his second game back after missing two games because of a hyperextended left knee.

The Suns never even had a lead in the NBA Finals until their 118-105 victory in Game 1. They dropped the first two games in both 1976 and 1993, their only other appearances, and didn't win more than two games in either series.

They've already got two this time and will go after a third Sunday in Milwaukee, which will host the NBA Finals for the first time since 1974.

"We know what the deal is," Antetokounmpo said. "We've got to go back home and protect home."

Jrue Holiday played more aggressively but didn't shoot a whole lot better than in Game 1, scoring 17 points but hitting only 7 for 21. Khris Middleton was 5 for 16, forcing Antetokounmpo to carry an even heavier load on

"And probably around the fourth inning or so, I didn't know how much more he had left. It really does speak to number one, how great of a competitor he is. He found a way, and in that process of finding a way to kind of gather himself and get back out there."

Gray said he woke up feeling sick.

"I feel like I definitely had an edge, maybe I was just trying to fake it until I could make it," he said. "I tried all my tricks to get my nerves gone and I guess they just slowly went away where I could just go."

A day after blowing a 6-1 lead entering the eighth inning, the Reds bullpen came through.

"Every now and then, sometimes a win is maybe a little bit more than a win, and maybe today was one of those days," Bell said.

Art Warren stranded the bases loaded in the eighth by retiring Hunter Dozier on an inning-ending flyout to deep left.

Heath Hembree pitched a perfect ninth for his fourth save in five chances, helping the Reds to their second win in the three-game series.

Cincinnati went ahead in the seventh after Tucker Barnhart singled off Brady Singer and Scott Barlow (2-3) relieved. Shogo Akiyama and Mike Freeman singled, cutting the deficit, and India doubled for a 3-2 lead.

Euro 2020 final: England can finally end 55 years of misery

BY ROB HARRIS
AP GLOBAL SOCCER WRITER

LONDON — All the years of hurt, England fans sing about it. All that sense of entitlement, rival fans are irritated by it.

After decades of embarrassment and moaning at tournaments, the English have a chance to finally back up the bravado — just listen to the team anthem, "Football's Coming Home" — with a trophy.

The nation that lays claim to being the inventor of soccer, but is more fittingly one of the sport's great underachievers, is back in a final — against Italy in the European Championships.

The teams will meet Sunday night at Wembley Stadium in London where England will be going for its first major title since winning the 1966 World Cup on their home field. The Italians are unbeaten in 33 games.

It's been 55 agonizing years for England through 26 World Cups and European Championship tournaments, seven of which they didn't even qualify for.

Even less illustrious national teams like Denmark and Greece have won trophies since then. But England became all about falling short on a world stage it felt it should dominate.

Beating Denmark on Wednesday broke through the semifinal obstacle at least in the Euros, prevailing 2-1 in extra time and avoiding the penalty shootouts that have proved to be the team's nemesis through all those near-misses.

"What a brilliant moment for us," England coach Gareth Southgate said on the field with fans still singing into the night at Wembley. "Let's savor this."

No way were the England players missing out on the chance to lap up the acclaim of a crowd waiting for this healing moment, not only to reach a final again but to gather in such big numbers again as the pandemic-restricted capacity swelled to 66,000.

"It's too late," Southgate quipped discussing any attempt to curtail the exuberance. "We all let ourselves down on the pitch."

The celebrations were a reflection of the bond the coach has forged between the national team and an English public that seemed disillusioned with the hubris and dreary performances before Southgate's overhaul began in 2016.

Leading England to a final is proving cathartic for the coach who as a player missed the decisive penalty in the Euro '96 semifinal penalty shootout against Germany. It was that tournament that saw the introduction of the England "Three Lions" song talking of "30 years of hurt."

It's never easy for England. Even when the path to the Euro 2020 semifinals seemed smooth — even the 2-0 win over archrival Germany — Southgate was prepared for difficulties against Denmark, especially after losing the 2018 World Cup semifinal to Croatia and being beaten in the 2019 Nations League last four by the Netherlands.

"I knew it might be a tortuous path," Southgate said. "In the end it's a wonderful evening for our fans, for our public and for our country."

Southgate sees his role as more delivering for a nation, assuming leadership status beyond sport when he talked about unity during the divisive Brexit debate and now encourages the players to use their platforms to promote social causes and campaign against racism.

Southgate is more than just an orator, though. Only 1966 Word Cup winner Alf Ramsey has been a more successful coach of England. The expensive imports at the start of the century — Sven-Göran Eriksson and Fabio Capello — could get no further than quarterfinals. Instead, a manager whose only club job ended in 2009 with relegation from the Premier League with Middlesbrough has led England to a final.

For all his popular support — "Southgate you're the one," fans sing — he resists pandering to fans' demands of selecting players. National hero Marcus Rashford, the Manchester United striker who has won acclaim for challenging the government, didn't even come off the bench for the biggest game of his career.

Japan bans fans at Olympics venues due to virus

BY MARI YAMAGUCHI AND STEPHEN WADE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOKYO — Fans will be banned from Tokyo-area stadiums and arenas when the Olympics begin in two weeks, the city's governor said Thursday after meeting with organizers of the pandemic-postponed games.

That means the Olympics will be a largely TV-only event, after the Japanese government put the capital under a COVID-19 state of emergency because of rising new infections and the highly contagious delta variant.

The declaration was made by Prime Minister Yoshihide Suga, and the spectator ban was agreed to by Japanese Olympic organizers, the International Olympic Committee, the International Paralympic Committee, and the metropolitan government of Tokyo.

It was a serious blow for Japanese taxpayers and local organizers of the games, which already had been postponed from 2020 by the coronavirus. Hundreds of millions of dollars in ticket revenue will be lost, and that must be made up by the government.

Fans also have endured months of uncertainty about whether the Olympics will go ahead.

"Many people were looking forward to watching the games at the venues, but I would like everyone to fully enjoy watching the games on TV at home," Tokyo Gov. Yuriko Koike said after the meeting. "It's gut-wrenching because many people looked forward to watching at the venues."

Fans from abroad were banned months ago, and the new measures will mean no spectators in stadiums and arenas around Tokyo — both indoor and outdoor venues.

The ban covers Tokyo and three surrounding prefectures — Kanagawa, Saitama and Chiba. A smattering of events in outlying areas, like baseball in the northeastern prefecture of Fukushima, will allow a limited number of fans.

The state of emergency begins July 12 and runs through Aug. 22. The Olympics, which open July 23 and run through Aug. 8, fall entirely under the emergency period, while the Paralympics open Aug. 24.

"Taking into consideration the impact of the delta strain, and in order to prevent the resurgence of infections from spreading across the country, we need to step up virus prevention measures," Suga said.

In principle, the July 23 opening ceremony at the new $1.4 billion National Stadium will be without paying fans, although some dignitaries, sponsors, IOC officials and others will be allowed to attend.

"We will have to review the situation about the dignitaries and stakeholders," organizing committee President Seiko Hashimoto said of the opening ceremony.

"No fans was a very difficult decision," she added.

Hashimoto acknowledged some regrets, particularly about the decision coming so late.

"We had no choice but to arrive at the no-spectator decision," she said. "We postponed and postponed, one after another. I have done some soul-searching about that."

The emergency declaration made for a rude arrival for IOC President Thomas Bach, who landed Thursday in Tokyo for the games.

He attended the virtual meeting on fans from his five-star hotel for IOC officials where he was self-isolating for three days.

"What can I say? Finally we are here," Bach said, sounding upbeat as he opened the late night meeting that ended close to midnight. "I have been longing for this day for more than one year."

Toshiro Muto, the CEO of the organizing committee, said many sponsors, federation officials and others would be considered to be "organizers" and thus would be allowed to attend venues. He said some might occupy public seating, but he said he did not know "the numerical details."

Organizers had expected to generate about $800 million in ticket sales. Any shortfall — and it could be almost the entire amount — will have to be made up by Japanese government entities.

Japan is officially spending $15.4 billion on the Olympics, and several government audits say it's much larger. All but $6.7 billion is public money.

Two weeks ago, organizers and the IOC allowed venues to be filled to 50% of capacity, with crowds not to exceed 10,000. The state of emergency forced the late turnaround, which was always an option if infections got worse.

On Thursday, Tokyo reported 896 new cases, up from 673 a week earlier. It's the 19th straight day that cases have topped the mark set seven days prior. New cases on Wednesday hit 920, the highest total since 1,010 were reported on May 13.

Elijah Chandler established this Designated Endowment as a great way to give back to the community that has been so good to him. A graduate of Madison Consolidated High School, Eli wanted to be able to help the public schools in Jefferson County so the students, and their parents, can be as successful as possible. He has a passion for food, and one of his joys in life is cooking with his daughter. Food insecurity is a growing problem in our region, and studies show that students perform better with proper nutrition. Annual grants from this fund will help public schools in Jefferson County assist students and families with lunch expenses.

It adds up to the Bucks having to overcome a 2-0 deficit for the second time this postseason.

They did it against the Brooklyn Nets in the Eastern Conference semifinals, but had some help when first James Harden and then Kyrie Irving were injured.

Now they are facing a Suns team loaded with weapons all over the lineup, and showed off all of them in their highlight play.

They whipped the ball all around the perimeter for the final basket of the first half. It went from Paul to Booker to Jae Crowder to Bridges, back to Crowder to Paul, then over to Crowder and once again Bridges. He then finally fed it inside to Ayton, who scored while being fouled with 14.9 seconds left for a 56-45 lead at the break.

The Bucks could only dream of having that many guys involved. Antetokounmpo's 15 field goals were more than twice as many as any other Milwaukee player.

Phoenix opened a 65-50 lead with a good start to the third, but Antetokounmpo — and pretty much only Antetokounmpo — kept the game from getting away from the Bucks.

He scored 20 of the Bucks' 33 points in the third, the first 20-point period in the finals since Michael Jordan against the Suns in 1993.

"Nothing Giannis does surprises me anymore. He's got the nickname Freak for a reason," Bucks guard Pat Connaughton said. "I will say it's incredible what he's been able to do, and it hasn't happened without time he's put in to get himself ready, get his body better and continue to do the things that he does to be a two-time MVP."

Milwaukee got it all the way down to six in the fourth, but Paul nailed a 3-pointer and Bridges had a basket to quickly push the lead back to double digits.

Milwaukee outscored Phoenix 20-0 in the paint in the first quarter, but eight of the Suns' nine baskets were 3-pointers and they were behind just 29-26.

Only two fouls — both on the Suns — were called in a clean quarter. Antetokounmpo took the only two free throws, making one and shooting an airball on the second as fans continued counting, as they have in Bucks' road games during the playoffs to show that he often doesn't appear to shoot them within the allotted 10 seconds.

It was tied at 41 with just under five minutes left in the half before the Suns surged ahead with precision offense and some shutdown defense.

They finished with a 15-4 run, the Bucks managing just a pair of baskets by Antetokounmpo.

He tried to fire up his teammates with some screaming on the bench during a timeout, but he couldn't put the ball into the basket for them. The Bucks were a dismal 6 for 25 in the period, missing 10 of their 12 3-point tries.

TIP-INS

Bucks: Middleton finished with 11 points. ... Holiday was 4 for 14 in Game 1. ... Antetokounmpo had his 13th game with at least 20 points and 10 rebounds in this postseason. Only Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 15 in 1974 and 14 in 1971, had more for the Bucks.

Suns: Booker has 490 points, second-most for any player in his first postseason. Rick Barry scored 521 in 1967. .. The Suns are 14-4 in this postseason.

COIN TOSS

Abdul-Jabbar had some fun with a video on social media calling to mind the important shared history between the teams who came into the NBA together in 1968.

The Bucks won a coin toss in 1969 that allowed them to select the future Hall of Famer with the No. 1 pick in the draft.

In the video, Abdul-Jabbar, wearing a Milwaukee No. 33 T-shirt, flips a coin.

"Bucks in 6," he then said. "Fear the Deer."
